The State Fair.

Yesterday was the most successful day of no less, we should think, than fifteen thousand persons were on the Grounds during the Ladies' Equestrian Display, notwithstanding the Regatta and Firemen's contest, which attracted thousands of spectators. A goodly number, including several of the fire compaules from neighboring cities, left on the evening trains, but they were more than overbalanced by the arrivals, so that there will doubtless be a large growd to hear the Address of Hon. ABRAM LINCOLN to-day. Tomorrow the Fair closes, and in addition to the attractions of the exhibition there will be a Balloon Ascension by Prof. STRINGR.

The Firemen's procession yesterday was one of the finest sights ever witnessed in our city, completely eclipsing the best display our military companies ever made.

The Grain Trade.

The wheat market opened firm yesterday, and under an active demand and moderate supply prices went up 2 to 30; extra spring selling at 73a74c; club 81a82c; and No. 1 at 79a81c. Receipts were better than fifty-three thousand bushels, namely: 1,597 bbls flour, 45,505 bus wheat. Shipments were light, not quite reaching twenty-five thousands bushels: 24.986 bbls flour and 12.355 bus wheat. Our despatchs report another advance of 5a10c on flour in New York. Wheat be found, as we can testify. was dull. The Buffalo market was quiet and unchanged:

MISSOURI WHITENING .- Free Labor is gradually crowding Slave Labor out of Mis- ing an economical tenant. souri, but the conflict is a hard one for the white laborer. A St. Louis paper of recent mander safes, and MICHAEL QUIGLEX, of date says that 150 Negroes arrived there in one Watertown, Wisconsin, a most ingenious day, from the interior bound South, and upington Express of Missouri, states that there is scarcely a county in that part of the State but what has its slave buyers for the South and that the adult slave population is rapidly decreasing.

The St. Louis Democrat says every boat brings groups of slaves down the river from the interior, en route for the South. A gentleman residing at St. Joseph tells us that within the past three months half the slaves in that town and vicinity had disappeared-some across the river on their own stance of the owners. af the present exodus continues, there will not be a thousand slaves left in the State of Missouri in four years

THE MICHICAN STEAMSHIPS,—The efforts of the Chicago papers to destroy public confidence in the Detroit and Milwaukee Railway dence in the Detroit and Milwaukee Railway steamships, by the most glaring misrepresentations, are attracting the attention and receiving the rebuke of the press elsewhere.—
In regard to the false assertion that one of these ships had been disabled, and the whole line proved a failure, the Rochester Union says that the Detroit, the one referred to. "suffered no injury from the sea which she was in for ten hours, but had her outwater slightly chafed by contact with the pier in going into Milwaukee. The Chicago papers raised a hue and cry that the Detroit had lost her wheel-house in the storm and was obliged her wheel-house in the storm, and was obliged her wheel-house in the storm, and was obliged to put back. The boats are now running regularly, and have not been detained by the weather at all except as stated."

Referring to the dreadful storm which the Detroit outrode so nobly, the Chicago Journal says: Captain Morgan, of the schooner Sirius, which sailed from this port for Oswego on Sunday last, and was caught in the heavy blow on Monday, and driven ashore near Racine, declares that he had doubled Cape Horn and the Cape of Good Hope, and had been on the water ever since he was a boy, and seen some terrific weather, but never in his life experienced so wild and terrible a night as that of Monday on Lake Michigan. night as that of Monday on Lake Michigan.—

A Young Married Lady Drowns Her-SELF IN A WELL.—A young married German lady named Wilhelmina Thilling, residing with her husband and child, a babe two months old, has for some time been laboring under an aberration of mind.

About 7 1-2 o'clock last evening she complained to her husband of feeling sleepy, when he told her she had better lay down.— He then went up to the garret to work, and shortly before 10 o'clock was alarmed by the screams of the babe. He hastened down and found the babelying in a cradle and crying, but his wife was no where visible. He then discovered the dress and shoes that she had

SAD ACCIDENT.—Henry Getz, a boy employed in the saw and planing mill of N. Southard & Co., at North La Crosse, met with an accident last Thursday, which, it is thought, will almost, if not quite, destroy the use of his right hand. The several tents are now filled with articles on exhibition, and the crowds in the passages between the goods reader the mere act of inspection a rather difficult one. At the entrance to the first tent will be found W. F. Shaw's patent gas heating and gas cooking stoves, exhibited by WALWORTH, HUBBARD & Co., of Chicago. There is a dense crowd about the operator all the while, and two men are kept constantly busy cooking patties and pastry for the multitude.— The invention is a simple and eminently practical one, and is destined to work a cleange in household economy eventually. There are several small stoves of sheet iron externally, the smallest not occupying over six inches square, and the largest, fashioned like an ordinary parlor stove. To bake, stew, try, boil or heat a room it is only necessary to apply the tubing which is connected to them to the gas burner, and in an incredible short space of time, everything is accomplished without a particle of dust or smoke. In this apparatus, atmospheric air and illuminating gas are used as fuel, being mixed in a tin cylinder and lighted above a wire the Fair. The weather was delightful, and of gauze. In Mr. Shaw's patent oven, the use the Fair. The weather was delightful, and of a perforated tin tube above the gauze and around the flame, prevents the formation of Aldehyde and Formic Acid Gas; both poisonous and noxious gasses. This is the only Gas Cooking and Heating Apparatus in use, in which the formation of the above gasses is prevented, and by which combustion is rendered perfect. When illuminating gas and atmospheric air are being used as a source of fuel, there are certain products of combination which scape laterally, and mixing with atmospheric air at low temperature, in one proportion. they form Aldehyde, and mixing in another proportion, Formic Acid Gas; now by preventing this lateral escape, and by feeding the products with atmospheric air, at a very high temperature in minute jets or streams, he not only prevents the objectionable formations, but actually supply another source of fuel to the flame, as the air forms a chemical union with the before mentioned products, and is all good as fuel. It is hardly necessary to add that these stoves are absolutely free from smoke or smell. The "Committee" on this branch of Art while inspecting the articles, were served with one dozen patties, one peach pie and one broiled steak, all cooked inside of twelve minutes, and as palatable as can anywhere

THE REGATTA. The Regatta, advertised to take place dur-

The Kinnekinnick came in second, making the distance in just 20 minutes; and the Wacoma, which was third, in 20 minutes, 25 seconds.

For the two pair sculls race there were two competitors; Messrs. Brooks and Tooney winning easily in 23 minutes, 46 aeconds. For the one pair soull race, the John C. Babcock, rowed by J. V. Lane, won by half s length, in a triffe over 25 minutes.

The four-oared race was contested by the Hoboken and the Ivanhoe, the former winning easily in 26 minutes.

The Regatta attracted quite a crowd or speciators, notwithstanding the various attractions elsewhere, and passed off without any accident.

TRADE IN PRUSSIA .- The British correspondent of the N. Y. Herald gives the suloined account of the state of business in the Kingdom of Prussia:

"The suspense and uneasiness prevailing in respect to the political aspect of Europe continues to impede the activity of most branches of trade, to which it was hoped the oranness of trate, to which it was noped the conclusion of peace would give a new impulse. Commerce, industry, and navigation are still in a depressed state, and capital keeps back instead of fructifying enterprises that would give occupation to a number of hands and be a source of profit to the employers. The failures of retail merchants in the provinces, especially in the dry goods line. provinces, especially in the dry goods line, have been going on at a fearful rate for sereral months; and in this city the list of bankruptcies of middle class firms, small manufacturers and tradesmen in different manufacturers and tracesmen in different branches of business has increased in the same ratio. The mobilization of the army led to the imposition of higher taxes by the municipal authorities for the purchase of cavalry, arillery and baggage horses, the billeting of soldiers, &c., which entailed heavy burthens on rich and poor, and of course obliged them to retrench in order to make up for this extra express heatile which of this there is a movement now in the calico or this there is a movement one in the carbo printing establishments, which is one of the chief articles of Berlin export. The machine builders, too, have got plenty of work again,

A most wonderful long range cannon, invented by Mr. Jeffries, patentee of the well known marine glue, is in course of being mounted in the Royal Arsenal, Woolwich, for experiments at Shoeburyness. Its range is spoken of as certain to eclipse every other wapon hitherto known. The gun, with its present bore, a three inch diameter, weighs seven tons, and presents an appearance (with the exception of the present calibre) similar to one of our sixty-eight pounders. Boiler Explosinos. Mr. H. D. Bayard writes to the Philadelphia Ecening Journal as follows:

"After tive years of experiments, Mr. Parry and myself have perfected and brought into use on some of the Western steamers, the Electrical Insulated Rod to prevent boiler explosions, first conceived by Richard L. Lloyd. Much has been said in the papers throughout the Union in regard to this discovery—various theories have been promulgated, but the one of "Latent heat converted into sensible heat being the cause of these frightful catastrophes," seems to find the most favor at present. This expression of Latent heat begs the question and leaves the mystery just as unsolved as ever. I offer the following views to the consideration of scientific men, hoping, with their valuable most interseting subject.

"All the known forces are convertible interesting subject. Mr. H. D. Bayard writes to the Philadel-

"All the known forces are convertible into each other. For instance, the life force is convertible by science into caloric, electricity, convertible by science into caloric, electricity, galvanism, magnetism and gravity, &c.— Moreover, each and all of these forces, are convertible into each other. This being an established fact, that there is no reason to doubt that a new or unknown force may be converted into any or all of the other forces. Let us suppose then that this unknown force pent up in a boiler, should, according to the above facts, be suddenly converted into caiorio. Every atom of water in the boiler would be instantly converted into steam of the highest tension, and not finding an immediate esest tension, and not finding an immediate es-cape, rupture or explode everything in its way. This action of rupturing or exploding is therefore the new force. But what causes it, and how can it be remedied? We know that if a current of electricity is passed throul a card slowly, no trace of its passage is risible on the card—but, if the same amount of ole on the card—but, if the same amount of electricity is driven rapidly or forcibly through the same card, the trace of its pussage is shown by a hole or rupture on the card, and the edges of this rupture are burned out each way, showing the action of a divellant or repellant force. Now this new force may accumulate in the boiler, and if there is no means of presenting this and if there is no means of preventing this accumulation, circumstances may arise which would convert it into coloric with the immediate and disastrous result of a terrific explosion. But, as there is reason to believe, this diveliant force is subject to many if not all the laws of electricity, and, in consequence, may be silently and surely got rid of by means of an insulated rod, introduced into the boiler, which will convey it away, as well as any electricity which may be generated along with it.

That there is electricity in the boiler there can be neglected. can be no doubt, and the new force is evident to every one who takes hold of the wire which leads from the balls at the top of the rod; at which time the most extraordinary sensations are felt, which do not in any way resemble those produced by electricity.
When the rod has but one point in the boiler, and steam is raised only to forty

ion. But, as there is reason to believe loes take place, even when the boiler is full of water, as well as when the water is allowof water, as well as when the water is allowed to get below the proper level."

With the commencement of the second paragraph we hardly agree with the writer; "the life force," as he calls it, "convertible by science into caloric, electricity, galvantism," &c., &c. What he means by the life force we do not know but waters with water.

ism," &c., &c. What he means by the file force we do not know; but we were not aware of any science which could resolve elements of life into either chemistry or meteorology. That heat, light, electricity, and mechanic force, all come from a common source we do hold; also that they are convertible to each other; but that the common source is in our hands we are far from believing.

A Log School House in the WilderNess.—Mr. Willis of the Home Journal saw a pretty picture during his recent railway trip to Virginia. It was nothing but a little logschool right in the heart of the Northwestern Virginia's mountain wilderness. The cars happened to stop directly in front of it, and Mr. Willis and his party paid it a visit:
"A modest and dignified courtesy from the school-mistress gave us welcoms. There was a spare bench near the door which accommodated the most of us, and Judge Warren and Poet Thompson occupied vacant spots on the short seat of the class up for spelling. Secretary Kennedy leaned on his stick near the shut-stove in the centre, his kindliest of voices and faces encouraging the interrupted exercises to proceed, and cloudinterrupted exercises to proceed, and cloud-compelling Maury stroked the head of the nice boy next him in the corner.— Bayard Taylor sat, in his quiet observing the nice boy next him in the corner.—

Bayard Taylor sat, in his quiet observing way, studying the surrounding rows of boys and girls faces—some thirty of them altogether, and every one barefoot, and all seated against the rough hewn logs on the one bench of narrow plank which lined the room, Fancy what a picture for a photographer to have brought away—the celebrities, and the little ragged problems of humanity all combined,
But one the tender Providence of God which has provided for these cradles of the intelligence of our race, the willing devotion of womanhood, so patient, so self-sacrificing, so uncomplaining and affectionate. The schoolma'am before us was a delicately formed young woman of twenty or twenty-two years, perhaps, dressed with exceeding plainness, and of the most unconscious simplicity of demeanor, but her pale and thoughtfully refined features had an expression which seemed to me the perfection of what we recognize as the beauty of the soul. She looked as if she felt born only to be good and kind to others while life should last, and that she was here in her place, somewhat that she was here in her place, somewhat overtasked, but doing good, she hoped, and willing to be forgotten. At the same time, in her subdued gentleness of tone, her exquisite propriety of replies, and her calm, sweet manner to us, a party of strangers, there was a self-possessed dignity that it was impossible not to pay homage to—difficult (I may as well say) not to record for others as admiringly as one remembers it for one's self. As I sat in that humble school room, and looked upon the unconscious beauty of its patiently presiding spirit, I could not but thank God for the angels still found distrib-uted through the world."

THE GREATEST SUFFERER—JOB NOT A "CIRCUMSTANCE,"—The Hillsdale (Michigan) Democrat, of Thursday last, tells a very steep story on the authority of a clergyman and an acquaintance, who resides in Monroe City. The subject of this remarkable relation is an invalid, whose sufferings throw that of Job entirely in the shade. The clergyman's statement is as follows:

A man now living in the above city (Monroe) was taken ill with rheumatism eight years Corner of East Water and Wiscousin street, Milwauker, Wiscousin.

Mode of Harvesting Corn.

Messrs. Editors:—I perceive by your paper that you are discussing the question of the economy of leaving corn on the bill to ripen in the natural way—to top it—or to cut it up by the roots. In this part of the country the matter is settled—the question is decided; in fact there is no question about it—by general consent, by long practice, there is but one way in the management of the corn crop, and that is to cut it up by the roots. A farmer by adopting any other course THE LARGEST STOCK roots. A farmer by adopting any other course would be considered unwise, a very bad manager indeed; in fact I know of no one who practices any other manner. In re-IN MILWAUKEE, one who practices any other manner. In regard to the economy—corn can be cut up in the same time that it can be topped, or with the same labor; a man can pick as much the same labor; a man can pick as much and taking cure of his stalk). The grain is as sound and heavy if not better than it is by any other treatment; and experimental farmers will tell you that the corn fooder upon a given piece of ground is worth as much or more than the hay would have been upon the same ground. My own experience is, that it is worth more for the keeping of cows or young cattle, as it will actually keep them a longer time, and they will do better upon the corn fodder than the hay that would under ordinary circumstances grow upon the same ground. Then the danger of frost is avoided, as soon will ripun if cut up outte green, there being juices, &c. in the OFFER THE BEST AND LARGEST WEREN LIFE BEST AND LARGEST was except of Account Books were seen in Misway experience for the process which can be kept roady-made can be found a their shelves. 1,000,000 BOXES SOLD OF MOREHEAD'S MAGNETIC PLASTER

THIS ENORMOUS QUANTITY OF this invaluable Remedy has been purchased by citizens of the United States during the short time it has been before the public. The reason for this extraordinary success is simply in the actual truth and value of the article. No one buys the MacNETT CPLANTER without becoming its friend. It per form all that is promised, and carries with it its own recommendation. Truly this is a Victory-peac ful and bloodless-but we believe not less groriou than the triumphs of war, with its train of carnage and desolution.

The MAGNETIC PLASTER is undoubtedly the Greatest Strengthener and Pain Destroyer that Science has yet discovered. If, you put this Plaster anywhers, if Pain is there, the Plaster will stickthore until the Pain has yanished. The Plaster magnetises the Pain away, and PAIN OANNOT EXIST WHERE THIS PLASTER IS APPLIED.
